Survey Manager

Efficient, transparent and centralized data collection across your supply chain

Do you have a complete risk picture of all your suppliers? Your company may be accountable for QHSE incidents caused by third parties. Survey Manager in Synergi Life brings efficiency to your third party management by standardizing and automating data collection while creating a common platform for communication and joint improvement initiatives. Survey Manager builds trust and confidence in your third party relationships.

Supplier relationship management

It can be a challenge for companies to establish centralized inventories and standardized processes for handling third parties, including creating reliable risk profiles, performing audits, reporting incidents and follow-up of actions and improvement plans. For many organizations, who are responsible for the risks carried by their suppliers, the complete risk picture is left unknown. Typically, various business units develop their own practices in Excel sheets, forms and simple databases with limited or no transparency in a greater context. A unified, language-independent tool to facilitate third party reporting and data collection is needed.

Synergi Life's Survey Manager addresses these needs and provides seamless communication with the third party while feeding Synergi Life with relevant information. You will have a complete framework for survey distribution, processing and conversion into risk profiles. Results are shown in dashboards and reports, enabling follow-up processes that are simple to use.

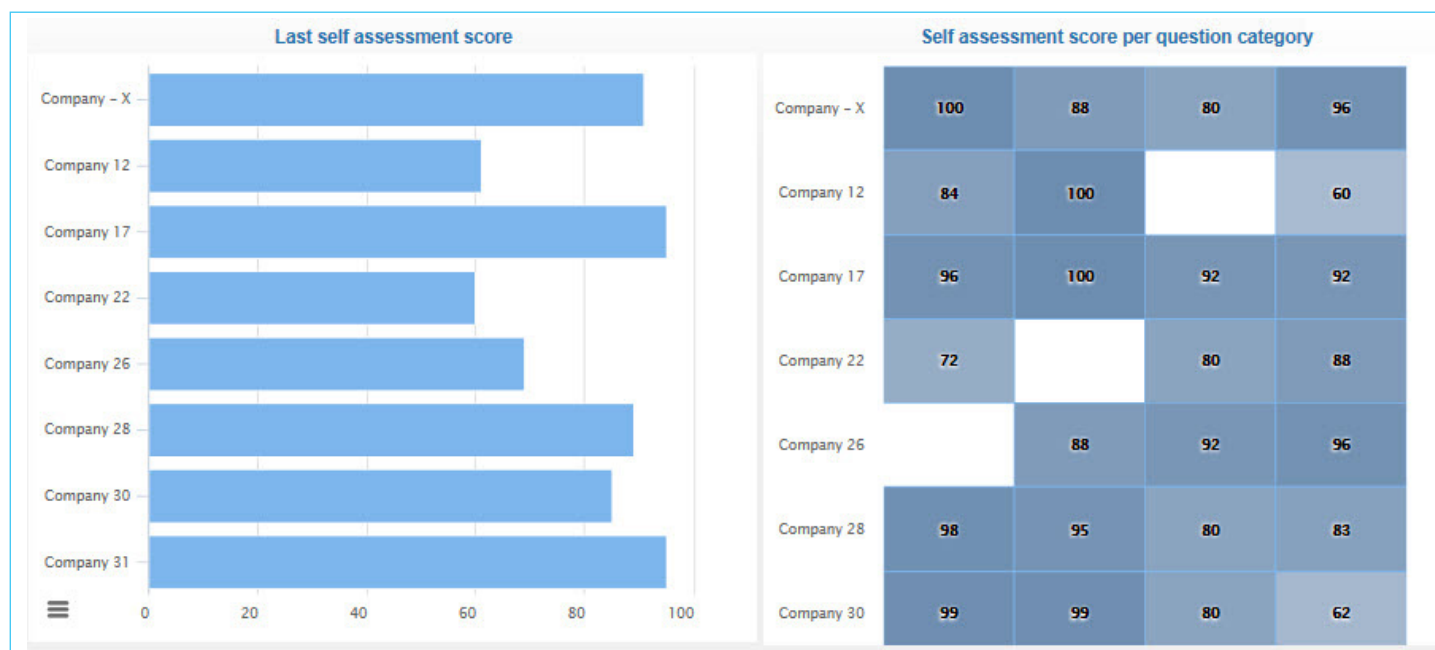

Automated data collection

Through a framework for the systematic collection of information from suppliers, contractors, vendors and other third parties, Survey Manager brings new and innovative working tools to the field. By designing various forms, such as self-assessment questionnaires, checklists and documentation requests, companies are not only able to standardize and automate the third party data collection process but also emphasize their commitment to QHSE standards.

Responses are reported to Synergi Life and automated risk profiles are created. After further evaluation, the final risk level might be set together with clear and actionable follow-up strategies. The Survey Manager interface empowers the third parties working with companies to reflect upon and keep risks at an ALARP level.

Building trust and confidence in third party relations

Survey Manager will not only bring efficiency to the third party management process, it will also contribute to building trust and confidence in the relationship, as it creates a common platform for communication and joint improvement initiatives.
